Job Description

MSLs are responsible for engaging in non-promotional, peer-to-peer communications and providing medical/scientific information to Scientific Leaders (SLs) and Key Decision Makers (KDMs).

Engagement with External Leaders

Engage in non-promotional, peer-to-peer exchange of medical and scientific information with SLs or KDMs to the extent permitted by law and local regulation, local industry codes, and other provisions of the Guiding Principles for Ex-US GMA External Stakeholder-Facing Activities.

Gain deep insights on disease, therapeutic area and healthcare needs, data gaps and challenges in their local geography.

Represent Medical Affairs at local or regional non-promotional Medical events (e.g. Medical Congresses and Symposia) — may collaborate in the coordination of pre-event scientific information and post-event scientific summaries.

Respond to unsolicited requests for medical, scientific, pipeline or marketed product information or indications from SLs or KDMs, utilizing appropriate approved scientific materials.

Respond to unsolicited requests for information on company research and/or grant activities by directing SLs or KDMs to appropriate company resources for grants, sponsored clinical trial involvement, and outcomes research.

Organize and participate in medical and scientific exchange activities, which include but are not limited to hospital lectures, journal clubs, expert input forums, and advisory boards — may take the role as presenter.

Share, on a reactive basis, the publicly available areas of interest with SLs and direct them to the appropriate resources for further information.

Provide medical/scientific support, including written documentation and/or verbal interactions for Health Technology Assessments and formulary decisions, following the principles of scientific exchange as outlined in the Guiding Principles for Ex-US GMA External Stakeholder-Facing Activities.

Internal Support

Support Medical Affairs Plans development and implement its activities.

Support the identification of potential study investigators for sponsored studies, at the request of the clinical trials organization personnel.

Provide insights on the scientific gaps, ideas and other topics gathered from scientific exchange to inform areas of interest, development programs, and company strategy.

Support company commercial colleagues by providing on-label or disease state scientific training, when requested and where allowed.

Provide scientific support to patient access program. Strategically, and consistently demonstrates the capability of applying up to date essentials of scientific knowledge at a peer-to-peer level across the scientific engagement model (SEM)

Competencies
