Company: SAAB Seaeye

Location: Sønderborg

Category: computer-and-mathematical

Do you want to work in a company that develops systems to help keep people and society safe? If you are motivated to work with digital and analogue communication systems within defense projects, you might be one of our new colleagues in the System Engineering team.

Our team is involved in managing the requirements and establishing design and verification of satellite communications systems for both civil and military customers.

Your role

As System Engineer, you will be responsible for the technical part of projects. Based on customer requirements and best practices, you will work with different technologies and plan the system design in close cooperation with other System Engineers, Project Managers and other stakeholders.

Tasks

System requirements analysis

Design and specification of systems and sub-systems

Analyse and configure CRYPTO with regards to voice, data and IP

Dialogue with suppliers and customers

Define test procedures for verification of requirements and participate in verifications tests

System Integration – all kinds of different interfaces between customers' communication and alarm systems and our systems

Your profile

This opportunity requires a teamplayer with good communication and interpersonal skills. You have technical qualifications (preferably a bachelor or master degree in system engineering) or relevant work experience.

We are in a global environment and therefore look for candidates with various backgrounds and experiences. We interact with each other and therefore need good communicators, who like to interact with stakeholders and who speak/write English.

Desirable

If you have knowledge with MMHS, Link, HF, VHF, UHF and RF, it is only an advantage.

Application

We look forward to receiving your motivated application (cover letter) and your CV.

What can you expect from us?

Saab Danmark is a company that is growing and you will therefore experience a company that is dynamic and able to adapt. In the Saab group we have a saying "Business is done between people", and this is also the environment you can expect here. We offer:

Initial learning process with mentorship and support

Good career and development opportunities in a professional company

A vibrant and international atmosphere with colleagues from all over the world

Benefits that support our employees' wellbeing

A variety of social activities, lunch scheme, pension as well as flexible work conditions

Focus on our teams, good cooperation and giving our employees the ability to take ownership of their tasks.

As a condition of employment, candidates will be required to participate in a background investigation and/or successfully demonstrate eligibility to receive applicable government security clearance(s).
